Marble Finishes!

POLISHED

Polishing a natural stone finish involves grinding, sanding and buffing the stone to a high-gloss, mirror-like surface. A polished finish is very smooth and reflective. Popularly used for interior cladding, countertops and fireplace surrounds.

HONED & FILLED

A honed finish still involves grinding and sanding, but not to the level of a polished finish. Honed finishes are a satin smooth surface that reflects very little light. Honed surfaces are best for high-traffic areas like flooring or countertops and are typically a bit easier to maintain.

BRUSHED

A brushed finish is obtained by brushing the stones surface with a coarse rotary wire wheel or brush until the desired texture is achieved. After this treatment, the colors of the stone become more vivid and provides a slightly leather feel.

TUMBLED/BRUSHED

This proprietary finish actually applies 200 years of wear to our stones to give the authentic look of antiquity. All soft stone is removed during this process to complete the old-world look.

ANTIQUED

Using copper slags with an intense pressure that actually distresses the surface of the stone and is cleanable. This provides a slip-resistance mainly used for exterior applications but is widely used in interior applications as well.

BUSHHAMMERED

A highly textured surface best used for external applications such as paving, walkways and cladding. A mechanical hammer hits the stone leaving small indentations on the surface. The result is an evenly textured surface that's ideal for non-slip, high traffic applications.
